Project: Conservation and Indigenous Rights to Land in Thailand (link)

In Thailand, IPs rights to LTR has been always violated in the name of development during the nation development and industrial and lately in the name of conservation.

In 2019, the Thai government amended the National Park Act (2019) which fully granted the power to the state authority in control and making decision in this area.

The rights of indigenous peoples on Land, Territories and resources has never been recognized.

Most challenging moments in the course

- Learning new tools is quite a challenge as some tools are complicated and difficult to use and most are only available in English.

Most powerful moments in the course

- Learning a new app like Mapeo for data collection is friendly and easy to use. Mapeo works offline, allows community monitors to collect simple information with GPS points and photos, share it with others and transfer it to a computer. And Mapeo is completely free and also available in Thai.

Key takeaways for applying to my works

- I can apply my favorite tools or applications that I have learned to my work to design and manage databases such as Mapeo/Kobo toolbox for data collection, Datawrapper/Google Data Studio/Tableau for data visualization and the knowledge on digital rights and security for update password and backup data, etc.

My Project on COVID-19

- I design my work as an interactive Data Dashboard+Infographic to show important information on one screen. The moments I am really proud of is that I finished in 3 days and tried to use many tools I learned in the courses. Let's see how it looks!
